

DRESS-UP WEEK

Have You Asked Yourself-- What does Dress-Up Week Mean to Me

Dress Up week may mean either much or little to YOU, depending upon YOURSELF. It's not a selfish movement--it's not only for the good of your merchants, but for the good of your city, your home, yourself.

It's to stimulate co-operation. It's a time to "Dress-up" "Clean-up," "Tone-up!" It's a time for you, your merchants, your city to put the best foot forward. The spirit that prompts such action will have a lasting effect--and will not culminate with dress-up week. Any merchant that makes his store more attractive--any city that makes itself appear more progressive--any person that dresses up himself or his home will not be satisfied with anything short of that standard thereafter. The effects of "Dress-up" Week are lasting. The good of such a thorough community tonic is apparent and worthy of your effort toward making "Dress-up" week a substantial success.

We All Need the Awakening of "Dress-Up" Week

We--as citizens
We--as merchants
We--as individuals
We--as a city.

We should be eager for the inspiration of anything that makes for any form of progress or betterment. We need this community stimulant.

WE AS INDIVIDUALS CAN PRFIT by "Dress Up" Week
by taking a keener interest in civic affairs--by beautifying our homes--by dressing-up as to personal appearance because of the tangible capital of good clothes in reflecting our social and business standing. The value of good clothes, of neater offices of more attractive factories, more inviting schools, cleaner streets, etc., is apparent to you both commercially and personally. "Dress Up" Week has been launched to encourage a general betterment in all these directions. The accomplishment of any or all of these ends will mean that YOU and WE have profited by its local inauguration.

The Dress-Up movement is an outgrowth of Peace, Progress and Prosperity. Men and women who champion these conditions are looked to for support and co-operation in this timely country-wide campaign.

CLENSES YOUR HAIR MAKES IT BEAUTIFUL, THICK, GLOSSY, WAVY

Try this! All dandruff disappears and hair stops coming out.

Surely try a "Danderine Hair Cleanse" if you wish to immediately double the beauty of your hair. Just moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil—in a few minutes you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy and abundant and possess an incomparable softness, lustre and luxuriance.

Besides beautifying the hair, one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; invigorates the scalp, stops itching and falling hair. Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful. You can surely have pretty, soft, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25-cent bottle of Klonlon's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.

FRECKLE - FACE

Now is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots

Do you know how easy it is to remove those ugly spots so that no one will call you freckle face? Simply get an ounce of othine, double strength, from your druggist, and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of freckles and get a beautiful complexion. The sun and winds of March have a strong tendency to bring out freckles, and as a result more othine is sold in this month. Be sure to ask for the double strength othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove the freckles.

Woman Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health.

Lima, Ohio.—"I was all broken down in health from a displacement. One of my lady friends came to see me and she advised me to commence taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and to use Lydia E. CAMPAIGN IS NATIONAL.

Several boxes of unbleached stockings were returned to an eastern store not long since, accompanied by a claim for credit. The obliging merchant traced the original sale to an account dated 24 years ago, and thus established the long-distance record for the exchange of goods.

In their present struggle with this system, the merchants of the different large cities are testing various methods. Los Angeles reports a 48-hour rule on the return of all merchandise. Cleveland has the same rule. San Francisco merchants require that returns must be made immediately if credit is to be given.

Minneapolis merchants who are parties to an agreement will permit no return at all, excepting, presumably, where the goods were really at fault, while in St. Paul there is a 24-hour return rule on goods sent on approval. In Denver the rule is about the same as in Minneapolis.

Sensitive shoppers have had their feelings hurt frequently of late, by admonitions concerning the return of goods which they have found with deliveries.

However, it may comfort them to learn that the campaign is a national one.

COMMERCIAL PREPAREDNESS.

We are doing absolutely nothing now either to take care of present conditions, or those which are going to confront us when the war is over. We have done a lot of talking about getting a lot of South American and Oriental trade as a result of the European war, and then retaining it after the war is over. But how can we hope either to get or to hold this trade unless we are in a position to transport it?

War conditions have opened our eyes to the necessity for military and naval preparedness. Are we going to wait until we are confronted with the most hostile industrial competition we have ever had before we begin thinking about commercial preparedness?

The American congress has a responsibility on its hands the seriousness of which it does not seem to realize. We need and must have ships; the necessity is imperative.

How long are we going to continue to do nothing about it? It remains for congress to answer.—Atlanta Constitution.

FACTORS IN PREPAREDNESS.

Let it be understood, military preparedness does not consist in the collection of men and munitions only, if we would adopt the European conception of national armament. Our railway system must receive new shapes; there must be military canals; our shipyards must be placed beyond reach of the first rush; great camps and strong armories must be provided upon the mountains bordering the lower lands near the sea; great power plants should be erected where the rivers come down from the mountains. People talk of military preparedness as if we would be armed as soon as congress voted a billion dollars for the purpose, whereas that is only the beginning and we are still unable to see where we could find the brains required to spend such a sum of money effectively or wisely. An appropriation for preparedness would come much nearer electing a president this year than defeating an enemy two years from today.—Florida Times-Union.

HE IS WANTED BY THE PEOPLE.

From all parts of the state come reports favoring Col. Frank O. Lowden, of Oregon, for the republican nomination for governor. Business men, farmers, professional men, newspaper editors, workmen in the factories and the shops, seem to agree that Lowden is the man for the nomination. They believe him to be well equipped for the position. With his experience as a teacher, lawyer, farmer, business man and statesman, they think the state's affairs would be safe in his hands. He has learned from experience how to do things in a big way and the office of governor requires a man possessing this qualification. Backed by no faction, but supported by the rank and file of his party, Frank O. Lowden is an ideal man for the nomination. He can be elected and he will make good.

DO WE WANT LOW TARIFF?

A commercial report informs us that Japan is buying a large number of sheep from Australia. The sheep industry is soon to be developed in Japan, and her woolen and worsted mills will soon rely on her domestic supply of wool. Under the democratic law she is getting into our market with cotton goods to an extent unprecedented in the history of our trade with the Kingdom of the Sun. There is no reason why, under the same law, she can not do so with woolen goods. Voters who are permitting the democratic party to blindfold themselves with the foreign policy, should remove that bandage and take a look forward before casting their ballot.

HOW THEY KEEP FIRE GOING.

Another plank from the Baltimore platform has been thrown into the democratic furnace now raging in Washington. "We believe in the preservation and maintenance in their full strength and integrity of the three coordinate branches of the Federal government—the executive, the legislative and the judicial—and keeping within its own bounds and not encroaching upon the just powers of either of the others," said the relic. But congress was forced by President Wilson to vote on the armed merchantman question.

CHILD'S BIRTHRIGHTS ARE

To Be Well Trained
To Be Well Educated
To Be Well Cared for

The most necessary of these three is the last one—"To Be Well Cared For." And the most important phase of this is the physical side—the Health of the Child.

Chiropractic is the only method of taking proper care of the Child's Health, and of giving the parent that feeling of knowing they have given the child the best.

Chiropractic means Health to the child, and consequently means a healthy Adult life. Your neglect will hold you responsible for the future health of your child.

OPERA HOUSE

Miss Virginia Stanton, who appears here with the Guy Hickman company at the Dixon opera house for eight days, commencing Sunday, April 2, is conceded to be one of the prettiest leading women on the American stage. Her youth and beauty attracted the moving picture scouts who are always on the watch for talent, beauty and youth, and she was offered a flattering engagement by one of the leading producers with studios in New York and California. Miss Stanton's refusal to consider it was a shock to them which demanded some kind of logical reason for refusing so promising an offer.

In an interview with the representative Miss Stanton said, "I think the motion picture a wonder of modern times, but I can not see where it will ever take the place of the spoken dramatic art, for the drama is art and the picture is but a reflection of art." Smilingly she looked at their representative and asked, "You are a married man, no doubt?" He replied he was. "Well, then, a photograph of your dear partner will answer for her when you are away from her side, but whenever there is an opportunity to be with her, to hear her speak, to look into her eyes, to watch her every action; she is real, not a reflection. That is my position. The public is my 'better half.' I want to see them, talk to them and feel that psychological bond which unites me with their lives."

The Guy Hickman company will present an entirely new bill each evening opening with "Putting it Over," a comedy full of mirth-provoking dialogue and situations, on Sunday, April 2nd.

The Store That Sells Wooltex

Women who have seen our Wooltex garments know that the styles are both refined and dependable.

In our advance exhibit of Wooltex the models shown were the equal in style to the best exhibited in the fashion centers.

Right now we are showing mid-season Wooltex models that will be copied later in the season by other makers of women's garments.

Because this is The Only Store That Sells Wooltex in this city, we alone are able to show these advance styles.

Surely you will want to see these new mid-season models this week. Every day you wait cuts down the time and likewise takes off some thing of the enjoyment of wearing the new styles while they are new.

Many fashion able mid-season Wooltex suits are priced as low as $25. Others at $30 and up to $45. Coats at $15 to $35.

A TALE of RED ROSES

Copyright, 1914, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

Sledge presents Molly with a magnificent diamond at the theater. Marley sells his stock. The political leader learns that Molly and Glider are to be married in the afternoon.

The sight of Molly in her bridal gown gives her father a thrill of hopefulness. She remains upstairs waiting for the minister, while Glider stays downstairs.

The wedding march is about to be played. Responding to a shriek, they find Marley on the floor. He tells her Sledge wins. Sledge forces Molly out of the house.

CHAPTER XVII. The Minister Comes.

"HONEST, I can't giggle about anything any more," regretted Fern, rescuing a discarded shoe of Molly's from under the boudoir couch and looking anxiously about her for any other traces of untidiness which the flustered maids might have left behind them. "I'm solemn in spite of myself."

"Please don't," objected Molly almost piteously. "If you turn solemn my last prop is gone." "I didn't mean to," apologized Fern. "But getting married is rather a weighty thing after all. Besides that, my conscience hurts me."

"It should, I suppose," agreed Molly. "Anybody's should. Why?" "About Sledge. Molly, he's a nice old fatty."

"I never can remember him with an ugly thought," admitted Molly. "I haven't sympathized with him, though. He started a rough game with me, and I beat him. I had to be rough to do it." "We were mean to him," declared Fern. "I've a notion to marry him myself to make up for it."

The pang of distaste which Molly felt at that speech was not jealousy; far from it. If anything, it was a mere questioning of Fern's taste in making such a remark. "That was it!" "I suppose poor Bert's lonesome," she suggested. "We really ought to go down and keep him company until the minister comes."

"Murder!" objected Fern. "Molly, you haven't a bit of style about you. You mustn't even see Bert until you walk in the parlor on your father's arm and take him for better or—well, for better."

"You don't seem any too hopeful," laughed Molly, looking longingly at the couch, but remembering her gorgeous gown. "I don't believe you like Bert very well."

"Indeed I do!" remonstrated Fern almost too quickly. "He's still the handsomest fellow I ever saw—tall and big and fine looking and the very best dancer I ever swung across a floor with. I just couldn't get through envying you when I first came."

"Yes, I was jealous of you," confessed Molly. "Bert is a fine dancer." "All the girls will be envious of you," went on Fern, determined to say nice things. "You should be very happy, Molly, about the new home and the fine business prospects and the social triumphs which I know are waiting for you, and you'll have a polished husband, of whom you can always be proud, and just bushels and bushels of love, of course."

"Of course," agreed Molly, looking at the little Dresden clock on the mantel. "Goodness, Fern, the minister is due to arrive in ten minutes, and Jessie Peters isn't here yet!"

"If she knew the importance of your informal invitation to call this afternoon she'd have been here hours ago," laughed Fern. "I don't wonder, Molly, that of all your girl friends she was the one you insisted on having here. She's a darling!"

"She's true," added Molly. "Somehow I always feel safe, even against myself, when she's around me. I love you to death, Fern, but you're wicked."

"I guess I am," giggled Fern. "I never can see anything else when there's a chance for devilment."

Mina knocked at the door. "Miss Peters," announced Mina, glancing once more over her handwork as she surveyed the handsome Molly and the pretty Fern.

"Have her come right up," directed Molly, brightening and waited with an expectant smile, which changed to a look of concern when she saw the poorly concealed traces of tears in Jessie's eyes.

"What's the matter, Jessie?" she asked, stepping hastily forward, and Jessie, forgetting or not seeing that painfully fluffy wedding gown, threw herself dismally into Molly's arms.

"They didn't want me to come!" she gulped. "But I had promised you, and Dicky said I might."

"Where is Dicky?" asked Molly. "He went on downtown on an errand. He'll be back after me in half an hour."

"Why didn't they want you to come?" asked Molly anxiously. "On account of my father."

"Father?" gasped Molly. "What about him?"

"Don't you know?" wondered Jessie, half crying again.

"Why, no, child," worried Molly. "What is it? Tell me," and she heard Fern slipping quietly out of the room. She led Jessie over to the couch, and all forgetful of her shimmering satin, with its beautifully increased folds, sat down.

"It's the street car stock," Jessie explained. "Dicky just came out to the house with the news. There is to be no consolidation. The old tracks are to be torn up three years from now, and nobody would have the stock for a gift. And it's Thanksgiving day!"

"That's only some wild rumor," Molly assured her, wondering, nevertheless, at this new and strange turn of financial gossip. "Even if it were true, though, how is father to blame?"

"I don't know, except that my father's like a maniac about it all and forbade me to come near this house."

Molly held her closer.

"Dicky brought me, though. He said that he didn't think Mr. Marley was the thief, and that if he was you weren't, and that if I wanted to come I was coming. He's a good Dicky, Molly, and here Jessie cried a little more, just on account of Dicky's goodness."

"It isn't father's fault, it's mine," confessed Molly, aghast, as she began for the first time to fully realize the hundreds of real sufferers in this high handed game which she and Sledge had played. "Mr. Sledge wanted to marry me, and I was engaged to Bert. He broke Bert. Then father said he had money enough for all of us; so Sledge tried to break father, and I don't know how many people besides us have had to suffer for that. It's Sledge and I, Jessie, not father."

They Found Frank Marley Sprawled on the Floor.

"Sledge is a beast," charged Jessie vehemently. "He is the most cruel and vicious man in the world, I think. Dicky says he should be killed."

"He isn't really so bad," declared Molly, trying to be just. "He's like other strong people. He doesn't know how badly he hurts. He's like a football player shaking hands with you."

"He is a brute!" shuddered Jessie. "I stood by him in Maberly's candy store yesterday, and I was actually afraid of him for fear I would annoy him by being in his way and he might turn around and be rough to me."

Molly laughed softly at the idea of Sledge's being rough to little Jessie Peters.

"Why, he'd be so gentle to you as to be ridiculous," she said. "Not even Dicky could be more gentle."

Jessie straightened immediately.

"How absurd!" she laughed. "You don't know Dicky, Molly. He isn't like other men. Why, when we found that we had lost every cent we had in the world and would be in debt besides and would even lose our home father blamed mother for signing the mortgage and has been cross with her ever since he got into difficulties, and there isn't a better father than mine. But Dicky! Why, when the West End bank failed because it held too many street railway securities and Dicky lost the $6,000 he saved to buy us a home, do you know what he did? He took me to the theater and patted my hand all through the show and told me how young we were, and how much money we were going to make, and how happy we'd be even if we didn't, and he wouldn't hear of father's having us postpone our wedding for a minute. Why, Molly, he can't do without me, and I can't do without him. It's wonderful!"

Molly patted Jessie's shoulder thoughtfully.

"I guess you and Dicky love each other very much," she suggested.

"I don't know how to tell it," confessed Jessie shyly. "Love is such a tremendous thing, Molly. It cries."

Molly was startled into silence. What was this thing that she was doing? She was entering on the most serious relationship in life as the termination of a game in which love, such as Jessie knew had had no part, in which even romance, to which every girl is entitled at least once, had been made subservient to business, to stock manipulations, to real estate deals and to stubbornness. The only one who had been at all romantic—and she smiled with a trace of humiliation as she remembered it—was big, coarse Sledge.

"You're going to be very happy, Jessie," admitted Molly, refusing to own she was envious.

"I'm so happy I'm selfish," replied Jessie comfortably. "I've even forgotten to ask why you were so insistent this morning upon having me come over at such an exact minute."

"I wanted you at my wedding," smiled Molly.

"Molly!" exclaimed Jessie. "That's why you and Fern are all in white. Oh, and I came over in my old blue tailored suit."

"That's lucky," laughed Molly. "You know the old time, something old and something new, something borrowed and something blue."

"I shan't be something blue," declared Jessie. "I'm too happy for that, and so are you. You're a lucky girl, Molly. You have everything in the world—friends and money and a pretty home and everything you want, including the man you love."

"I suppose I am lucky," agreed Molly, putting her arm more lovingly about her friend. Somehow she did not like to let go of little Jessie.

There was a knock at the door, but it was Fern who stood there in place of Mina.

"The minister is here," whispered Fern in her most mysterious air, and her eyes were dancing. "He's in the parlor, trying not to see that shocking picture, and Bert's in the library pulling his thumbs, and your father's in the den, most respectfully quiet. Jessie, you come down with me. I'll send up Mr. Marley, and when he and Molly start downstairs you're to play the wedding march, while I back Bert up under the chandelier. Now, everybody to their posts."

She flew down the stairs and hurried back to the den. A moment later they heard a shriek, and, running to the den, they found Frank Marley sprawled on the floor with Coldman's check crumpled in his nerveless fingers.

GERHARDT FRERICHS

RECEIVES $20 PER MONTH

To Support an Invalid Wife and Upon Which To Live.

This is the condition of our respected citizen Michael Duffy, who now asks your votes to make him Tax Collector.
Mr. Duffy has lived here a great many years and has been a good citizen, doing his best to make an honest living, paying all his earnings to support his wife and himself. However, misfortune has overtaken him and he is appealing to you for your help.

Mrs. Duffy is sadly afflicted with cancer on her face, one eye is entirely gone and they are without funds to get such relief as medical aid might bring.

When the power sweeper was put at work on our streets Mr. Duffy's work was not needed, but being unable to do hard work at his age the city commissioner's kindness permitted him to remain doing what he could at the small salary of $20 per month, during the winter season. Many of the business men who know Mr. Duffy's honest service have donated to his work in small amounts to keep him going during this time and he now feels all that is left is an earnest appeal to the voters for his declining years. If the voters fully understood the conditions of Mr. Duffy's case there would not be the slightest doubt about his election. 7416

A CALL FOR HELP

LOTS OF IT IN DIXON BUT DAILY GROWING LESS

The kidneys often cry for help. Not another organ in the whole body more delicately constructed. Not one more important to health.

The kidneys are the filters of the blood.

When they fail the blood becomes foul and poisonous.

There can be no health where there is poisoned blood.

Backache is one of the frequent indications of kidney trouble.

It is often the kidneys cry for help. Head it.

Read what Doan's Kidney Pills have done for overworked kidneys.

"What what Doan's have done for Dixon people."

F. K. Chare, tailor, 1204 First St., Dixon, says: "I had a dull ache in the small of my back, right across my kidneys. I had heard Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended, so I got some at Leake Bros. Co.'s Drug store. They relieved the pains in my back and I have had no kidney trouble since."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Chare had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.
